Interesting Fact about Me: I love sleeping more than anything

What made you choose Georgetown's McDonough School of Business? I always knew that I wanted to study business but the cutthroat and competitive nature of the field always scared me a little. I chose McDonough because not only will I be getting an exceptional education but I will also be with students who care about one another and the betterment of each other. At a school like Georgetown you can tell that the sense of community is present both in and outside of the classroom.

What are the best things about being a Hoya? The best things about being a Hoya are being able to refer to Georgetown as “The Hilltop”, being able to tell which school each student is in, running to Vittles or Epi for a late night snack, and having half your wardrobe be Georgetown gear!

Why do you love D.C.? Brunch, internships, museums, and brunch! DC has so much to offer and we are lucky to be able to make it our playground. I love being able to walk down to M street for a macaroon at Olivia’s or running down by the waterfront. The snapchat opportunities are endless in DC.

Share a defining and/or transformative classroom/educational moment? I have never been a writer and I was intimidated by the writing requirement course at first. It was only after I decided to go to office hours that I formed a relationship with my professor that allowed me to grow both as a person and as a writer. A class that I would have not taken had it not been a core, taught me more about myself than I ever expected.

What is your advice to incoming Hoyas? Apply to everything, multiple times. Do not be discouraged by not getting into a club the first time around. You are at Georgetown because you earned it and you will eventually find your place.
